

Molly and the Magic Mustache problem

Act 1

Chapter 1

Molly awoke to the sound of an her alarm clock going off. She rolled over and hit the top of the alarm clock and pulled herself out of her purple bed. Ahead of her she could see herself in the mirror. Her white layered hair falling down either side of her roman nose and dry lips. Her emerald green eyes were cat like complete with thick eye lashes. "Molly get down here this instant" yelled her aunt Megan. "I have cooked breakfast and I don't want you to have to eat it cold." "Fine I'm coming" yelled Molly back down the stairs as she threw on a jumper over her purple pajamas.

Once downstairs Molly entered the kitchen where Megan was already sitting down at the table eating pancakes. "Well the pancakes are on the stove" said Megan as she pointed towards the stove causing her honey colored hair to ripple around on top of her head and fall in front of her denim blue eyes. "So how come you quit your last job then?" "Look Megan you may of been a seaweed harvester for years along with your criminal great grandmother" Said Molly as she dumped a pancake onto her plate before going to sit down at the table. "But I'm just not into that ok." "Whatever do you mean it was a great job" said Megan as she looked towards Molly. "Hey did I ever tell you about that time me and your grandmother stole an entire warehouse full of seaweed; Our house smelled like salt for over a week." "That was pretty stupid really" said Molly as she poured maple syrup onto her pancake. "I mean your getaway was not even that good both got caught and thrown in jail for years." "Yes but we managed to keep the seaweed due to her lawyer" Said Megan. "I still have some stashed under the sofa if you want some."

"You must be on seaweed if you think that would be a good topping for a pancake" said Molly pointing her fork towards Megan. "As I keep saying to my broke friend Toby; If you have nothing good to say then don't say anything." "Why is he broke" Inquired Megan "does he not want my seaweed money." "Nobody wants the seaweed money" Yelled Molly pointing her fork at Megan. "It was all from stolen goods." Over the next few minutes they sat in silence as they finished eating the pancakes.

When the pancakes were all finished Molly got up and walked over to the sink. "Well thanks for the breakfast but I need to go and practice my tightrope skills for tonight" said Molly as she turned and walked over to the gardens door. "If you need me I will be in the garden."

Once out in the garden Molly walked over to the tightrope that she had attached to two tall trees. Once she reached the tightrope she jumped up onto it and began to practice her act. Then after a few hours Megan came outside and brought Molly a tomato sandwich. Which Molly ate whilst sitting on the tightrope. "So then Molly" said Megan. "How goes the practice?" "So far so good" said Molly as she gave the plate back to Megan. "I still have a few more hours to practice before I have to preform my routine tonight."

A few hours later Molly walked out of the house and walked through the front garden until she got to her old rusty purple car. Molly pulled the slightly damp door open and climbed inside her car closing the door behind her. Once inside Molly inserted her car keys and the engine spluttered into life. With that Molly turned on the headlights and took off the cars handbrake. Then with a quick tap of the accelerator the car was off. Most of the journey was through small neighborhoods then towards the end molly turned onto the motorway. Molly drove reasonably fast down the motorway towards the field where the circus had set up for the weekend after being set up on a beach the previous week. After a while the quiet rush of the wind blowing past her car as she flew down the motorway became just background noise. Then suddenly her turning appeared and Molly turned off the motorway and followed the side roads around the forest until she reached the field with a huge circus tent in the middle of it.

Molly then drove into the field and parked her car in the car park before wandering into the tent. "Ah Molly I was just looking for you" said Magic Mustache his grey eyes perfectly complementing his ridiculous looking handlebar mustache. On the top of his head he had bleached white hair that was braided and looked as stupid as the rest of his multicolored stage magician's outfit. "Your late so you need to proceed straight to the stage in the main arena." "Fine I will see you there" said Molly as she walked over to the other end of the dressing room and out into the arena. "Good evening everyone I will be walking a tight rope thats all the way up there. With that Molly ran over to the other end of the arena and began to climb the ladder all the way to the top. Once at the top of the ladder Molly walked out onto the tightrope. When Molly was halfway through her act Magic Mustache made his appearance to thunderous applause. Then once Magic mustache got to the podium in the middle of the arena he waved his wand around shooting sparks out of the end of it.

Then before Molly could react Magic Mustache had pointed his wand towards her and he cast a spell towards her. Molly tried to dodge the magic projectile as it sliced through the air with a slight popping noise. But it hit her straight in the chest sending her falling towards the floor and causing her to black out in the process.

Chapter 2

Once Molly came back around she found herself in a dark forest. The trees around her seemingly stretched upwards infinitely into the sky. After looking around Molly decided that she needed to leave the Forest. She then began to walk through the forest whilst keeping an eye out for civilization. Molly's main concern was that her friend Toby would end up selling all her stuff. That is if she didn't return soon. As he would surely take the opportunity to cash in on her disappearance.

As Molly walked through the Forest she noticed that it was being lit up by dim moonlight. After a few minutes she found what seemed to be a path and began to follow along it. In the distance Molly could see lights in the distance and she decided to head towards them. Thinking that it was her best shot at getting back to civilization. The path was covered in small twigs that snapped with each footstep. Molly could also hear a stream in the distance. As Molly walked along the path she reached a fallen tree. Molly then proceeded to pull herself up over the tree. All whilst trying to avoid getting scratched by the brambles. "Wow this is weird" Molly said to herself as she followed the path downstream. "I don't remember there being a forest here." Molly then thought back the circus tent. And remembered that the last thing she saw was Magic Mustache pointing his wand at her. "Dam it Magic Mustache" said Molly out loud. "I knew he was secretly evil."

After a few minutes Molly came across a ravine and it had a broken rope bridge over it. The bridge was dangling off one of it's support ropes. "Now heres something I can work with" said Molly to herself as she noticed the broken bridge and walked up to the beginning of it. "Here goes nothing." With that Molly began to walk carefully over the top of the rope. Being careful to maintain her balance as she went. "Well this is not to bad" said Molly to herself as she put one foot after the other. "At least it's not totally broken." As Molly reached the halfway point over the bridge the wind began to pick up. This caused the rope to begin to swing from side to side. Molly then had to balance with her outstretched arms so as to not fall off the rope.

Then finally she was on the other side and jumped down off the rope. Only to have her feet land in a muddy puddle. "Great now I have mud in my shoes" said Molly as she sat down on a nearby tree stump and took her shoes off one by one to remove the mud from them. "Ok at least thats the worst of it gone." Molly then began to continue to follow the path downstream. Walking past multiple small clearings in the forest as she walked along.

Suddenly Molly heard the distinctive noise of horse hooves and dived behind a fallen tree. As Molly looked through the mass of branches in front of her she could see a convoy of horse drawn carts. Even worse the people riding on top of the horses were dressed like they had just come from a wild west themed convention. Molly then remembered the spell from Magic Mustache and realised that she must of been transported to the wild west. "Well this complicates things" said Molly to herself once she was sure that the people were out of earshot of her. "I will need to get back as soon as possible." Thoughts ran through Molly's mind about how dangerous the current situation could be for her.

Eventually Molly decided not to think about the bad things that could happen to her and continued following the water downstream. After a few minutes the water joined a fast flowing river. Molly then began to walk alongside the river following it further downstream. Ahead of her Molly could see a group of fishermen that were trying to catch some fish complete with a pile of there fishing gear on top of a log on the side of the river. Molly then carefully maneuvered past the fishermen before continuing to follow the river downstream. As Molly walked alongside the river she noticed that the riverbanks were covered in reeds and were not very well kept. In the distance Molly could see a large town. It was made up of what looked like small wooden buildings with metal supports. What confused Molly is that she couldn't remember there being a town here at all. Never the less she continued to walk towards the town thinking that she would be able to find out much more information once she reached the town. As she walked towards the town it slowly grew bigger and bigger. "Well this town looks like something out of an old movie" said Molly as she walked towards the town. "It kind of reminds me of a small town out of the wild west. Wait that could be a problem if I am stuck in the past."

Molly's brain went into overdrive. Thinking of all the ways that she might be able to get back home. All whist the river ran by crashing over rocks and going down small water falls. Molly then walked past a splash pool at the bottom of a small waterfall. The water was super turbulent something that mirrored her current feelings towards her current situation. Molly was nearing the town and was beginning to walk past kept fields and wells. Then after a few more minutes of walking Molly arrived at the edge of town and began too have a look around. The buildings were small affairs. Not much more than a few planks of wood nailed together with no regard for health and safety codes. The town also had several people riding around on horseback. With yet more people unloading carts attached to the back of horses with the days produce off what must be the food from the local farms.

Act 2

Chapter 3

Molly then headed further into town figuring that if magic sent her back in time. It would also be able to send her back to her own time again. "What I need to find is a witch" said Molly to herself as she walked down the dusty street the sand blowing around her feet. "They might know how to send me back to my own time." The towns streets were pretty quiet as it was still dark with only the moonlight illuminating the ground below her feet. The shadows that were being caused by the buildings were long and stretched across the ground. Seemingly running away into the forest themselves.

"It's so quiet out here" Molly said to herself as she wandered along the street reading shop signs as she went. "I've just got to find the local witch then I can get out of here. Hopefully that won't take long." The wind that was blowing through the town was surprisingly cold and chilly. Molly shivered before resuming her walk down the street. The town was full of small shops and saloons where she could hear the sounds of drunken partying coming from the inside. Ahead of her there was a bar fight that spilled out onto the street as two large people went at each other with chairs. Taking this as a hint that it may be time to move on Molly turned around the corner and began walking down another side street. The side street was darker than the main street as less light from the moon reached down into the side street. Ahead of her there was someone that was sleeping rough on the ground. Molly carefully stepped over him and continued down the side street until she came to another main road.

This main road was busier than the last one with many people standing around talking to each other. Molly decided that it would be too hard to blend into the crowd with her current clothes so she kept to the side of the street where the shadows would be able to hide her presence. Molly then walked over a small bridge that was covered in dust and mud. Once on the other side of the bridge Molly found herself near the middle of town. Ahead of her was a large building with several wooden columns made of old tree trunks. The building also had multiple windows with wooden shutters. Through the shutters Molly could see faint candlelight that flickered in between the shutters slats of wood. Molly then began to walk through the town square being careful to stick to the edges of the park so as to avoid being seen. Ahead of Molly there was a couple making out behind a tree. Molly did her best to avoid being seen by the couple as she crawled through the bush behind them.

The bush was spiky and green like dry seaweed; Still Molly continued to crawl through the bush as she moved stealthy past the couple. The bush seemed to go on forever until Molly crawled out of the bush and right into the line of sight of the town sheriff. "You there stop" yelled the town sheriff as he began to chase after Molly. "Your evading arrest." "You bet I am" said Molly under her breath as she sprinted towards the shadows before getting grabbed from behind by the town sheriff. "Hey get off me." "Nope your going to jail this time" said the town sheriff as he dragged Molly through the door to the town jail. "Then Broden Justice does it again." "Just throw her in cell three" said the man that was standing behind the desk. "We will decide what to do with her in the morning."

The inside of the cell was freezing and Molly was pretty sure that the person in the cell next to her was drunk. He was passed out and lying on the floor breathing heavily. Then Molly looked into the other cell next to her. "You want to buy some seaweed" asked some random old guy that Molly was pretty pretty sure was also drunk. "I can do it for a good price." "What are you on about" said Molly as she sat down on the floor so as to wait out the night. "I don't have any money on me. Boy I should of have become a pro gamer."

The next morning a girl with chocolate brown eyes and wavy ginger hair walked into the office and tried to paid off the town sheriff. But after he decided not to help her she ended up roundhouse kicking him in the face. The sheriff fell to the floor and suddenly with a bang the girl disappeared. Only to reappear a split second later next to Molly. "Hi I am Cait" said the girl before holding her hand out towards Molly's. "Take my hand theres no time to explain." No sooner had Molly taken hold of Cait's hand the outside world blinked out of existence. Only to reappear a split second later in a run down house.

Inside the house the paint was falling off the walls in large chunks and the oil lamp was flickering in on the table in front of them. "So I see you've met Broden Justice" said Cait as she let go of Molly's hand before motioning for Molly to follow her into the kitchen. "Some idiot is paying him per arrest so he is just throwing everyone in jail." "Look Cait this may sound crazy but I think you might be able to help me" said Molly as she looked towards Cait. "You see I seem to of been transported back in time to the wild west and need to get back to my own time." "Well the only thing around here thats wild is that idiot sheriff" said Cait as she looked Molly up and down inspecting her clothing. "Well I may be able to help you with getting back to your own time. But I only take seaweed as a payment."

Chapter 4

"Oh come on" exclaimed Molly as she looked towards Cait's face as it flickered in the orange light coming off the oil lamp. "What is it with people and seaweed." "What it's tasty" said Cait as she looked towards Molly. "Also theres a side effect from sending you forward in time. You will become a pro gamer in the future." "That works for me" said Molly thinking that it was rather convenient. "Well let's get started." "Ok so in order to get you back we are going to need a time crystal" said Cait as she rummaged through her draw of potion ingredients. "I may be able to blink myself but to throw you through time I need to boost my powers with a time crystal." "Let me guess" said Molly as she looked at Cait whilst she picked some dirt out of her nails. "Time crystals are hard to come by." "Yeah they are" said Cait as she looked back towards Molly having failed to find one of the time crystals in her draw. "We are going to have to go and get one from the cave where they grow." "I'm guessing thats hard to get to" said Molly as she looked back towards Cait. "How far do we have to go?"

"Well the cave is located deep in the mountains and is normally filled with water" said Cait as she looked towards Molly. "That means that retrieving the crystal is not an easy feat." "Maybe thats what the person that sent me back in time was after" said Molly as she gestured towards Cait. "Maybe Magic Mustache was trying to get the crystal for himself but sent me through time by accident." "I somewhat doubt that" said Cait as she began to fill a bag with all the supplies they would need for there trip to retrieve the crystal. "Just so you know we are going to have to walk to the cave as there is a magical flux that is put out by the time crystal that prevents me from blinking to it." "Thats fine I am not against walking" said Molly as she and Cait left Cait's house and began to walk up a small dirt track that lead up into the mountains. "Wow I bet we will get a good view from the top of this mountain." "Oh yeah" said Cait as she stepped over a tree trunk as she made her way up the path. "The view from the top is really quite something." "Well in that case" said Molly as she followed Cait up the path. "I look forward to seeing the view from the top."

Cait and Molly continued to walk up the steep mountainous path being careful not to step on any snakes or any sharp rocks. To the sides of the path the trees towered around them blocking much of the view through the dense forest.

As they neared the top of the mountain Cait began looking around for the opening to the cave system. "Ok we should be almost there now" said Cait as she tried to remember how much further she had to walk. "I think the pool of water that is the entrance to the cave system we need is just up ahead."

Once Cait found the small pool of water that lead into the cave she dived in. Before Looking backwards toward Molly and gesturing for her to follow her into the water. "Well this is it" said Cait as she watched Molly carefully enter the pool of water. "It's just a short swim now. That said you have to follow me exactly so as to not get lost underwater." "Yeah I know" said Molly as she waded into the cold mountain water. "I will follow you."

The water was cold against Molly's skin as she dived underwater and followed Cait. Who was swimming down into the darkness just ahead of her. Molly and Cait continued to swim through tight water logged tunnels until they finally surfaced in a large cavern that had daylight pouring in through the roof and filtering down through the murky brown colored water. "Ok this looks about right" said Cait as she surfaced beside Molly. "The time crystal we need should be down one of these side passages." "Cool that good" said Molly as she treaded water beside Cait. "Well lead the way I will follow you." The tunnels of the cave system looked very similar and Molly was glad to have Cait to show her the way through the cave.

"So how many times have you been up here then" asked Molly as she looked towards Cait. "As you seem to know your way around quite well." "Oh yeah I like swimming up here" said Cait as she ran her hand along the passageways left wall. "The water filled passageways make for quite the challenge." "So all this water" said Molly as she followed behind Cait. "It does not scare you then?" "Nope not really" said Cait as they went deeper into the mountain. "I find the quiet ambiance quite relaxing. Plus it has a large amount of time crystals growing here. Which is really helpful for me and my work." "I suppose thats fair enough" said Molly as she ran her hand against the jagged rocks that made up the passageway. "Someone should make these passageways less rocky." "There good as they are" said Cait as a dim light began to come into view at the other end of the tunnel. "I think this room coming up is the one were looking for." "Thats good" said Molly as she followed behind Cait being careful to follow right behind her so as to not step on anything spiky that was poking out of the ground. "Here's hoping that there are some time crystals in this cave." "Oh they will be there" said Cait confidently as the light from the cave got brighter still. "You can see glow they are giving off already."

Act 3

Chapter 5

As Molly and Cait walked into the larger cavern they began to see the glowing time crystals growing on the walls and floor of the cavern. Then as they were entering the cavern they saw a figure that Molly new all to well sitting on a nearby rock facing away from them. "Well at least I seem to be able to use my powers in this cave" said Cait looking around the cave at it's high roof. "I guess we must be within the eye of the flux." "Whats up girls" said Magic Mustache as he turned around on the rock he was sitting on whilst stroking a fat cat with white fur. "You want to buy some seaweed." "Wait what are you supposed to be" asked Molly half laughing once she saw the cat. "Are you trying to be some kind of super villain?" "Of course I am the bad guy" said Magic Mustache as he accidental catapulted the cat into a nearby pool of water as he got up so quickly. "I have a cat the handlebar mustache and everything." "Well your not great for the bad guy stereotype" said Molly as she and Cait got ready to fight the upcoming battle against Magic Mustache. "Your playing to tropes to much."

"Whatever let's kick his ass" said Cait as she reached down into her bag and pulled out a handful of seaweed and threw it at Magic Mustache. "Eat seaweed weirdo." Cait then ran over to Magic Mustache and grabbed him by the Mustache before blinking them both into the air. Then kicking him across the cave. Magic Mustache then slammed into the opposite wall before regaining his composure and kicking off the wall. Magic Mustache then went shooting through the air towards Cait as he fired razor sharp seaweed towards cait. Cait blinked out of the way before reappearing right below Magic Mustache and roundhouse kicking him into the ceiling. Molly wanting to help looked around the cavern for ideas before spotting a nearby vine and grabbing hold of it. Molly then began did a running jump and swung herself towards Magic Mustache.

Molly went flying through the air before letting go of the vine and landing right on top of Magic Mustache's stomach causing him to crash into the ground due to the added weight. "Three, Two, One" yelled the cat who had just pulled itself out of the water and walked over to Magic Mustache. "Zero and your out." Suddenly the cat ran it's claws down Magic Mustache's stomach causing him to explode into a cloud of smoke. "Thanks for the assist I guess" said Cait as she looked towards the cat before it to vanished in a puff of smoke leaving a pile of seaweed where it was just moments before along with a note. "Of course the cat leaves us a note saying you want to buy some seaweed." "I am tired of all these terrible seaweed jokes" said Molly as she sighed with frustration before looking back towards Cait as she blinked in next to her. "Let's just get this time crystal and get me back home." "Yeah ok" said Cait as she walked over to the nearest time crystal and broke it off the cavern floor before putting it into her bag. "You sure you don't want to buy some seaweed of the cat." Molly gave Cait a stern look before they left the cave back through the tunnel that they came in.

Once back at Cait's house she pulled out a mortar and pestle began to get to work on the time travel potion. She mixed the powdered time crystal with many other ingredients as she worked. "Well it was nice having you stay with me" said Cait as she mixed the potion. "You know your way back home from the where you left your time yeah?" "Yeah I do and thanks again" said Molly as she watched Cait prepare the time travel potion. "So whats next for you then?" "Oh nothing much" said Cait as she looked back towards Molly. "I just hang around town looking for people to help out." "Yeah thanks for that" said Molly as she looked back towards Cait as she stirred the potion with a wooden fork. "I appreciate the help it you really saved my ass back there." "Yeah sorry about our sheriff being an idiot" Said Cait as she put the potion back on the table before pulling a metal bathtub out from under her sofa. "One moment and we will have our time portal."

Suddenly Cait dumped the potion into the metal bathtub and it began to swirl with purple energy. Then it flashed bright purple and through the vortex Molly could see the inside of the circus tent. "Well I guess this is where I get off" said Molly as she stood up off the sofa and looked towards Cait. "Thanks again and if you ever want to visit me feel free to drop by." "Thanks but I think I will stick to my own time" said Cait as she waved goodbye to Molly. "Just watch the exit as it can be a bit rough."

Molly nodded and jumped through the swirling purple vortex. Her skin heated up as she passed through only to crash into a pile of boxes on the floor of the tent. Suddenly there was a huge cheer from the audience. Who thought it was all part of the performance. Molly then took the opportunity to duck out of the circus tent and ran back to her car. Once back in her car Molly turned the keys in the lock and the car spluttered to life. Molly then put pedal to metal and drove the car right out of the car park at top speed. Once back on the motorway Molly began to relax and listen to some music on the radio. But next to the radio there was a note from Cait. "You want to buy some seaweed?" said Molly as she read the text of the note. "No thanks Cait I think I'm good."

Chapter 6

Molly decided that she would test her pro gaming skills. So she looked up the nearest pro gaming tournament on her phone. Before heading in that direction. The trees on either side of the motorway ran past there leaves a blur of green. After half an hour Molly turned off into the car park of the pro gaming tournaments arena. After she had found a parking space she parked up and turned off the cars engine. Before removing the key from the lock and heading into the venue. Once inside the venue Molly looked for games to play. Upon seeing a vr game about tightrope walking Molly decided that that was what she was going to try.

After a minute of walking Molly arrived at the check in desk for the vr tightrope game tournament. "Ah you must be here for the tournament" said the receptionist looking up from his desk. "If you sign your name on the table at the end of the table I can book you in for the one that starts in half an hour." "Ah thanks" said Molly as she walked over to the table and signed her name on the tablet. "How many other people are competing." "Well basically the win goes to whoever stays on the rope the longest" said the receptionist looking back towards Molly. "So I think you should have a pretty good chance of winning." "Well thats good to here" said Molly before she wandered over to the waiting area and sat down next to another pro gamer. "You want to buy some seaweed?" The person next to Molly looked at her with a confused stare he was not amused. After looking around for a few more minutes Molly and the other pro gamers were called up into the vr room and they all put on there vr headsets.

Once the vr headset was on molly found herself balancing on the top of a tightrope. There was a countdown then everybody began to run towards the flag in the middle of the room. Several people fell off the ropes they were on and fell into the lava. But Molly managed to keep her balance as she ran towards the flag in the middle. As she got closer she realised that she would not be able to make it without a running jump. So after building up even more speed she made a leap towards the flag and grabbed hold of it sending sparks flying in all directions. Having one the game Molly took off the vr headset and collected her winnings from the judges desk. The winnings comprised of a large trophy and some money. Molly then made her way back to her car.

Once back in the car Molly started the engine and drove back onto the road. On the way home Molly thought about how easily she had won the vr game tournament and decided that she would become a pro gamer. The lights from the motorway flashed through her cars windows. Lighting up the cars interior in flashes of orange light. Molly found the lights annoying but had learned to deal with it a long time ago. Due to her routinely getting home late from work. A few minutes later Molly took her turning off the motorway and began to drive the smaller roads that would lead back to her house. Her house was quite an easy drive from the motorway due to all the streetlights. Which made the journey and the driving at night easier to enjoy.

After Half an hour Molly arrived back at home just in time to stop her friend Toby from stealing selling all her stuff to a strange looking man standing on there porch. Once inside Molly said hello to her aunt Megan who was busy cooking seaweed and made her way upstairs. Once back in her room Molly changed into more comfortable clothes and headed back downstairs to join Ashley for supper. "So what have you been doing this last week" asked Megan as she served the seaweed soup with a large spoon. "I haven't seen much of you lately." "It's a long story" said Molly as she sat down and began to eat the seaweed soup. "I mean I got sent on quite the adventure thats for sure." "Well It's good to see you back home" said Megan looking back over towards Molly. "I made your bed for you and tidied your room. You really should do that more often it's such a mess when I normally go up there." "Yeah I have been meaning to get around to that" said Molly as she ate another spoonful of seaweed soup. "Still thanks for doing it for me." "No worries but don't count on me doing for you again" said Megan looking back at Molly whilst pointing her spoon towards her. "This is more of a one off kind of thing."

After Molly had finished the seaweed soup she washed up the bowl and retired to her bedroom. Once in her bedroom she grabbed her laptop and switched it on. Once the laptop had turned on Molly was spammed by emails from many people she was friends with who were asking where she was. Molly decided that it would probably be best to just send a mass reply to all of her friends saying that here Internet had been down the last week. Molly then opened her web browser and began looking at pictures of cats that were cute. After a while Molly got bored and put her laptop away and after deciding that it was getting quite late. Molly decided to get an early night. So molly then turned off her light and climbed into bed. Molly then reached over to her nightstand and picked up her phone and wrote a quick message to her friend to convince her that she was back. Thus Toby would not get to sell off her stuff to pay for his rent. Molly then put the phone back onto her nightstand and went to sleep.

THE END